UM LECTURES FOCUS ON VARIED MEDICAL TOPICS

MISSOULA --

Homeopathy, Native American healing and acupuncture will be among the topics covered as The University of Montana kicks off the 1995 edition of its spring semester lecture course, "Recent Advances in Clinical Medicine."

The course, Health Sciences 389, will include 15 lectures by local medical practitioners, each scheduled from noon to 1 p.m. Thursday in Room 221 of UM's Science Complex. Sessions begin Jan. 19.

Participants can earn up to 1.5 continuing education credits for the course, with credit earned based on the number of sessions attended. Professionals seeking continuing education credit pay $100 for the series, $70 for 10 sessions, $35 for five sessions or $8 per session. The lectures are free for people who aren't seeking credit.

This year's lecture series is divided into three five-session parts, each focusing on a different area of medicine. The first five lectures will explore medical approaches that complement standard physician care, the next five sessions will address pediatric issues and the last five will focus on women's health issues. The first five lectures are:

Jan. 19

"Bridging the Gap: Homeopathy and Other Naturopathic Solutions to Tough Medical Problems," by J. Jamison Starbuck, Missoula naturopath.
